Tuesday, January 16th at 12pm the Food Bank of New York will be honoring the legacy of Dr. Martin Luther King together for a MLK Virtual Day of Service! We welcome you to join us via Zoom to learn about Food Bank's work and unite with fellow volunteers, advocates, and community members to advocate for access to nutritious meals for New York students in the New York State Budget. Thousands of children throughout New York State do not have access to cost free meals at school, and students attending college face increasing costs of living and tuition. By providing food access to students, New York State can bring budget relief to struggling families, and help New York students succeed. Advocates will have the opportunity to participate in:

1. A youth-friendly activity to create a collective, virtual art advocacy project, or;
2. A letter-writing session calling on our state representatives to support these programs in the budget negotiations

Upon request, advocates can receive confirmation of 1 hour of volunteer service for attending this event and mailing their picture(s)/letter(s). You can gain 1 additional hour of service for sending a photo to Food Bank of your drawing or of you mailing your letter(s). WSCAH ROCKS
THE BLOCK

Writing Against Hunger Annual Contest

West Side Campaign Against Hunger's (WSCAH) second annual writing contest invites young writers (ages 10 to 18) to share poetry and essay submissions about the ongoing hunger crisis in the United States today.

The food we eat nourishes our bodies and minds, but that's just the beginning of the essential role cooking and eating play in our lives. Consider the importance of food and how it connects to memory, culture, and family. What happens when we or members of our community can't access the healthy food we need? Why is it that one of the wealthiest nations on this planet continues to have millions of its citizens living without food security?

Prompts

Hunger is a personal, complex issue that affects people on an individual and global scale. It can feel daunting to approach this subject. Ask yourself: "how does hunger affect me?" or "how does hunger affect the people around me?" We've included some prompts below to help you get started, as well as a collection of poetry from Poetry X Hunger, a poetry project dedicated to the work of writers of all ages tackling the difficult topic of hunger.

These are just suggestions to help get your creativity flowing; if you have an exciting idea for how to write about food that isn't represented below, go for it!

- Think about the importance that food plays in our community - how does food bring us together?
- Think about the idea of fullness or nourishment. What does it mean to you to be full? How is being full about more than what we eat?
- Write a poem that personifies hunger and its impact.
- Explore the societal factors that contribute to hunger and its unjust consequences.
- Craft a poem that paints a picture of a community's resilience in the face of hunger-related injustices.
- Consider the role of privilege in perpetuating hunger-related injustices.
- Imagine a world where hunger is eradicated and justice prevails.
- Reflect on the moral imperative to address hunger as a fundamental human rights issue.
- Write about the many people who are working tirelessly to combat hunger and its injustices.
- Explore the theme of food waste and its relationship to hunger and injustice.
- Think about hunger and inequality and write a poem that calls for social justice and change.
- Try starting a piece of writing containing (or beginning with) one of these lines:
 - It's puzzling... So much food around, yet so many hungry...
 - My bad, I just threw half my sandwich away...
 - Have you ever wondered why food isn't a shared right like the air we breathe?

This rule covers:

Working papers are divided into two age groups (14-15 and 16-17):

14-15-year-olds - Your working papers are blue. If you are 14 and 15 years old, you are issued these working papers because you are not allowed to work in a factory.

PARENTING TIPS & RESOURCES

Struggling to Meaningfully Connect With Your Teen?

Scroll Through for Ways To Positively Engage With Your Teen

Why Is It So Challenging To Talk With My Teen?

There are many reasons why your teen may be hesitant to talk to you.

Teens may think thoughts like:

- My parents always overreact.
- Why are my parents so noisy and intrusive?
- How can they possibly imagine how my life feels?
- How can I mention taboo subjects like sex, drugs, and other issues to my parents?
- Mom always wants to go deep, personal or bring up how I feel. Bleugh!

Action Steps To Ensure Positive Connection with Your Teen

Seize opportunities to affirm your teen.

- Express things they do right, not just the things they do wrong. Be specific in praise and try to praise effort and character traits rather than focusing solely on accomplishments.

Be approachable.

- Build a habit of saying something like, "Tonight I need to _ but if you want to come by and chat, I can make time for that." Pay attention to times in the day when your teen seems more talkative than usual, and be around them then. Parents often find talking in the car between activities is a good time to talk.

Explore your similarities and differences.

- Consider their personality profile. How is it different from yours? What excites and irritates them? What is your teen's love language?

How to Talk to a Teenager

Bring up topics in the right context.

- Bringing up a tough topic right as your teen gets home from school, or while you're mid-grocery-shopping may not be the best course of action. Choose a time in a private, neutral space to broach a tough conversation.

Ask about their experiences with curiosity, not judgement.

- Give your teen time and space to talk about their own experiences with the topic at hand. Ask respectful, open ended questions for teens with curiosity, rather than judgement.

Remain calm throughout the entirety of your chat.

- Keep your tone of voice and your behavior warm for the whole conversation. Making your child feel judged or that you are disappointed in them for anything they share with you may negatively affect their probability of talking to you about these topics in the future.

At the tail end of your conversation, make sure you let your teen know that you're grateful for their openness and honesty.

If your child feels comfortable sharing their experiences, worries, and dreams with you, they will be less likely to hide their problems from you, and more likely to ask for help when they need it.

Opening the door to healthy conversations with your teen is key in making them feel supported and loved!

ALTERNATIVES

to "How was your day?"

SKIP the "I don't know"s
INSPIRE a conversation!

What were some of the feelings you felt today? Can you name them?

What was one thing that made you laugh today?

What did you play at recess today? Who did you play with?

What was the best part of the day? And the worst?

What was your favorite lesson your teacher taught you today?

7 WAYS TO SHOW UP FOR YOUR TEEN

Get interested in their interests, talk about what they want to & stay up late with them.

Hold them accountable. Help them earn privileges & rewards. Boundaries are still important.

Listen to understand. Ask questions. Try not to lecture

Praise them directly & to others: "I'm so proud of who you are."

Speak up for issues they are passionate about. If you don't know, let them teach you.

Be a safe person while respecting their privacy. Be their home base.

Their pain is real. Believe them when they say they are hurting.

HEALTH AND WELLNESS & MORE...

Have you heard of warmlines?

Warmlines are phone numbers people can call when they need someone to talk to or to just be there, whether they are experiencing a crisis or not.

Staffed by people with lived experience, callers can receive support when they need it without traveling, being enrolled in a specific program, or attending a support group.

They can feel confident that the person on the other end of the line is a person with shared experience who understands the relationship-building, compassion, and hope that peers offer.

Visit mhanational.org/warmlines to find the hours of operation of any warmlines near you.

Practice self-compassion.

Be kind to yourself. Try to limit and course correct your self-judgments.

Make time for yourself.

Allow time for rest. Pay attention to when your self-care battery is running low—and take the time to recharge.

Set manageable goals for yourself.

Write goals down—they will lead to bigger accomplishments in the end.

5 TIPS to TAKE CARE of YOUR MENTAL HEALTH

Notice the moments of joy in your day—no matter how big or small.

When you take time to notice positive moments in your day, your experience of that day becomes better.

Gather strength from others & build a support system.

Countless other people have faced similar stresses or challenges. Reach out to friends, family, or a therapist.
